How Maj. Perkins Lost His Taste for Hard Cider

How dear to my heart is the old cider barrel

As fond recollection presents it to view.

The place where they kept it, corked up in the cellar

Is as fresh in my mind as it ever was too.

The white washed walls, the potatoes and turnips

The apples we'd picked, when the weather was fair,

How well I recall them, how gladly I lingered

Beside the old barrel deposited there.

Once armed with a gimlet, I went to the barrel,

Dear father and mother had gone for the day;

I bored a hole and slipped a straw thru it,

And ceased to be troubled while sucking away.

I found in it, a great pleasure,

Till things in my mind seemed to blend,

And I couldn't have told whether I or the barrel

Was dancing around or still standing on end.

Somehow I got out of the old white washed cellar

And whooped and hurraed around awhile.

They say my shoutings aroused all the neighbors

Who lived within the circle of a mile.

At last my fond parents came home from their visit

The things that followed, I shall never forget,

I acquired a hatred for hard cider barrels

That long has been rankling and clings to me yet.

If a whole barrel was spilled in the street,

I would walk a half mile to keep it off my feet.

ELI PERKINS.

The First Thanksgiving

When James I was King, everybody in England had to worship according to the doctrines of one Church. This church was supported by the State and for this reason was often called "The established Church."

There were some people in England, who did not believe in these doctrines. They thought the Church should be purified. For this reason they were called "Puritans." If they stayed in England they could not uphold their beliefs without being fined or imprisoned, so they decided to go to a country in which they could worship as they pleased.

First they went to Holland. There they stayed for eleven or twelve years, but they decided they did not want their children reared like Dutch, so they moved again. This time going to America.

Under the leadership of Miles Standish, Bradford and Brewster, after a long a perilous voyage, they landed at Plymouth, Mass., on December 11, 1690. Half of their number had perished, but what remained, bravely set about building homes and making friends with the Indians.

From these natives they learned how to plant corn. In the spring of the following year, they planted their crops. The weather proved very favorable and by fall they were well supplied with grain and food.

They were so thankful that the Lord had blessed them thus, that at the suggestion of Governor Bradford, they held a feast, to which they invited their friendly Indian neighbors. They prayed, feasted and sang. This was our first Thanksgiving.

Since then we have set aside the last Thursday in November to celebrate this Holiday and though the majority of us do not observe it in the spirit as our fore-fathers did, we have a great deal more to be thankful for than they.

HAVE YOU A CHILD?

Many women long for children, but because of some curable physical derangement are deprived of this greatest of all happiness. The women whose names follow were restored to normal health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Write and ask them about it.

"I took your Compound and have a fine, strong baby." — Mrs. JOHN MITCHELL, Massena, N. Y.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine for expectant mothers." — Mrs. A. M. MYERS, Gordonville, Mo.

"I highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before child-birth, it has done so much for me." — Mrs. E. M. DOERR, R. R. 1, Conshohocken, Pa.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build up my system and have the dearest baby girl in the world." — Mrs. MOSS BLAKELEY, Coalport, Pa.

"I praise the Compound whenever I have a chance. It did so much for me before my little girl was born." — Mrs. E. W. SANDERS, Rowlesburg, W. Va.

"I took your Compound before baby was born and feel I owe my life to it." — Mrs. W. W. JONES, Tills, Winter Haven, Florida.

"I took your Compound before baby was born and feel I owe my life to it." — Mrs. W. W. JONES, Tills, Winter Haven, Florida.
